Leveraged Finance Market Slams Door on 2020 With Solid Fourth Quarter

Debt investors blocked out fourth-quarter noise to end roller-coaster year with significant momentum.

Despite a record number of COVID-19 cases and an unstable political landscape, the leveraged finance market continued to build on the previous quarter’s momentum, ultimately ending 2020 in a similar fashion to the way it began. Fueled by positive vaccine developments and a significant increase in M&A activity, institutional loan volume increased to $80.5 billion⁽¹⁾, up more than 10% from the fourth quarter of 2019. Dividend recapitalizations accounted for $17.5 billion⁽¹⁾ of the total volume, the largest such figure since the first quarter of 2017. Market conditions also continued to shift in borrowers’ favor, with lenders pursuing attractive financing opportunities with an aggressiveness that had not been seen since before the pandemic. Businesses in industries that are more significantly affected by COVID aren’t out of the woods yet, but optimism about vaccines has eased concerns about a prolonged impact and put debt financing conversations back on the table.

Results from our quarterly leveraged finance survey reflect the trends that shaped the fourth quarter. Please don’t hesitate to reach out if you have questions about what we are seeing in today’s market or other credit-related topics you would like to discuss in more detail.

Leveraged Finance Survey

Each quarter William Blair surveys middle-market leveraged finance professionals representing leading credit funds, BDCs, finance companies, commercial banks, and other credit providers to measure sentiment in the leveraged finance market. The data reflect responses from the more than 70 leveraged finance professionals who participated in the survey this quarter.

During the past quarter, did transaction terms and leverage?

For transactions involving a private equity sponsor, what is the minimum equity contribution you require?

(1) 30% of respondents indicated they require >40%

During 4Q20, did you make borrower-friendly concessions you historically would not have to win a deal?

If yes, what were the concessions?

(% of total respondents)

With debt markets nearing pre-COVID levels, lenders are increasingly making borrower-friendly concessions to win competitive deals

On the same scale, again assuming the pre-COVID rating was a 5, where would you rate the aggressiveness of your firm's approach to new debt opportunities today?

0 = Significantly LESS Aggressive; 10 = Significantly MORE Aggressive

Average Rating by Quarter

Additional color on differences in approach between pre-COVID and today

- More willing to go from deal in the door to full commitment in a condensed timeframe (10 days vs. 2-3 weeks pre-COVID)
- Smaller hold sizes, not going long on syndications and more cautious on certain industries
- Focus on liquidity and actual cash flow
- Willing to concede on pricing with businesses that have been minimally affected by COVID
- Sponsored-transactions with a bend toward defensive industries are receiving the strongest, most constructive support
- Stronger support for existing clients relative to new opportunities
- Focused on COVID adjustments and sponsor actions during the height of the pandemic (transparency, fairness etc.)
- Specific focus on COVID-resilient businesses with concerns around further shutdowns despite vaccine and stimulus
- We are taking the same approach to winning deals. However, the credit underwriting process is more in-depth

Over the past 9 months, what percentage of your firm’s loan portfolio experienced some form of default (including companies that would have defaulted if not for an amendment)?

What would the percentage be if you include companies that you expect will default in the next 3 months?

What is your firm’s current maximum hold size for a single credit?

Compared to your firm’s pre-COVID hold sizes, what have you observed regarding your firm’s current maximum hold size?

Are there any specific sectors or industries for which your firm is proceeding more aggressively or cautiously today compared with 6 months ago?

Looking ahead to 2021, what are your expectations regarding pricing of your primary debt offering?

Looking ahead to 2021, what are your expectations regarding transaction terms and leverage?

Looking ahead to 2021, what factors or trends do you expect will have the greatest impact on the leveraged loan market?

- Extremely high activity in Q1 from continuing to work off the backlog from 2H 2020. Resumption of business travel post-vaccine (ie 2H 2021) will lead to even more deals hitting the market. Despite huge dry powder overhang, lenders and sponsors will be able to pick their spots, but processes will remain accelerated
- Continue the aggressive push that was experienced in Q4. Biggest reason is continued low interest and abundance of capital for both equity and debt to facilitate transactions
- Will be highly active and competitive. Biggest factor will be vaccine’s timely rollout, acceptance (will requisite portion of population take it) and effectiveness
- The market will continue to loosen as we go into 2021 and as a vaccine is rolled out
- Adjustments for COVID will have the biggest impact on leverage and enterprise value
- Robust liquidity will lead to an issuer-friendly market
- Continuing of current trends, including aggressive terms for high quality deals; possible deal flow slow down in Q1 from the current flurry of activity
- Monster year for M&A and refinancing given the extensive dry powder
- Public markets overly enthusiastic about pace, adoption, and efficacy of vaccines. A backup here could quickly flow to the private markets, crimping liquidity and alternatives, but creating pockets for opportunistic investment
- Reopening of global economy and virus caseloads
- Hold size will be competitive advantage in dictating terms and getting enhanced economics / pricing
- Good deals will be bid aggressively and credit underwriting will be in-depth
- TTM EBITDA decline thru 3/31 for COVID-impacted businesses
